

Chart is the graphic visualization the flow of the Forex market quotations, where the line displays the current value of the course on a specific currency pair. The most common are linear, bar and candlestick charts. If you use graphics it is necessary to have certain theoretical knowledge to understand them correctly, because the graphs constructed on the basis of many types of analysis of the financial market. Graphs are displayed in the trading platform, the company's website, as well as many articles and market reports available to the trader. Charts show the dynamics of prices within a certain time interval. They represent the past price movement of any financial instrument will provide the trader to predict its future movement in the future. Charts also reflect the general picture of thoughts and behaviors of all market participants, so it has some kind of psychology that can track and predict.