

Price gap is occurrence of any of the following situations:

- Bid Ask the current quote more than previous quote;
- Ask the current quote is less than Bid price of previous quote.

Price gap occurs on difference between the closing price and opening price of consecutive successive elements of the chart. In a detailed consideration of the price chart you can see the gap between the two elements of the schedule (eg, candlestick chart.) Price gap often occurs in illiquid markets, and in between the trading sessions and in between the holidays. Price breaks can occur due to release important fundamental news.
